And the mysterious Russian woman he met in Europe provides him to some of the answers he was searching for, as well as to some dangerous desires that he wasn't. Upon completion of his contract job in Europe, he enjoys a well-deserved respite at home. But it's short lived, as a swell of terrorist attacks against the United States require (or demand) more of his military service. Caught between being there for his family and his duty to his country, Captain Corcoran coldly reminded that the two actually are mutually inclusive. But he'll need to reach deeper within himself than he ever has before in order to succeed on the battlefield and at home. This fourth book about the Hatford brothers and the Malloy sisters begins before Christmas, three months after the Malloys move to Buckman, WV. As the holiday season approaches, the boys and girls continue to play pranks on one another and begin to learn the consequences of their actions. Caroline Malloy and Wally Hatford are partners for their fourth-grade December project and discover that, instead of annoying one another, they need to learn how to work together in order to receive a passing grade. Told in their alternating viewpoints, the story moves quickly, continuing the mischief and humor of the previous novels. Readers will be especially taken with precocious and dramatic Caroline, who will stop at nothing for revenge. While it is not necessary to read the first three books in the series, the series will enjoy references to the characters' past pranks and will deliver the promise of future additions to this ongoing battle between these rivals. I need love, and maybe a spanking and then. I just wish it wasn't so hard to find someone who shares the same passion as me. Just as I was about to give up, a name in the ABDL chat room caught my attention. He says he wants to diaper me. Could he be the Big I was wishing for?
